INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT STUDIES TRAVEL GRANT FACULTY APPLICATION

APPLICATION DEADLINE: MARCH 22, 2017

The International Development Studies Board is offering up to $1000 to support travel for research or conferences related to international development. Applicants must be Colorado State University faculty and associated with the International Development Studies Board. All projects must include a component of campus outreach upon return. This may include a talk organized by the Office of International Programs or other creative means of sharing your experience and knowledge. Requests may be up to $1000. The amount of the final award is at the discretion of the board.

Successful applicants will propose a valid and feasible project that is related to international development studies scholarship, articulate how the proposed project will enrich teaching and/or the International Development Studies program, and describe feasible means of sharing what is learned with the CSU Community.
